The National Awards for IT Professionals - judged by IT Professionals

This year we will recognise individual achievement

If you have worked in the IT industry for more than 5 years, have established a track record of achievement (delivering major projects on time on budget, for example) or have contributed to the industry or the wider community you should enter the Awards.

It is easy to enter – no entry fee required – just visit www.consensus.com.au

Thanks to Hudson IT&T the Awards will be announced and presented at an exclusive industry gathering in Sydney on 30 November by the Hon. Senator Stephen Conroy, Shadow Minister for Communications and Information Technology.

Senator Conroy with Terry Insley, Director of Programs (L) and Julian Day, Managing Director (R) of Consensus Awards at the 2005 Consensus IT Writers Awards presentations

The Senator knows the ITC industry and work of Consensus well. He has been in Federal Parliament since 1996 and has held the IT portfolio since 2004. He is also Deputy Opposition Leader in the Senate, and was most recently guest of honour at the 2006 Consensus Software Awards and presented the 2005 Consensus IT Writers Awards - for excellence in print and on-line journalism.

Who are the judges? How does it work?

On the Entry Form we ask you to provide the information we need under the three headings listed and ask you to provide an appropriate referee, someone who is willing to support your application and sit on the national judging panel. Consensus will, if necessary, appoint additional judges to ensure a balanced and respected panel. The judges will be free to make as many award recommendations as they believe are merited.
